

SEDIBA COLLEGE

Training and Development Practitioner

Occupational Certificate: Training and Development Practitioner

Level 5 Credits 190

SAQA ID: 101321

Why a Training and Development Practitioner?

- The purpose of this qualification is to prepare a learner to operate as a Learning and Development Practitioner.
- A Learning and Development Practitioner plans, writes learning objectives, selects and adapts learning resources required for the delivery of learning interventions, and facilitates learning in an occupational context.
- The course duration is 12 months including theory, practical and workplace experience components. Sediba gives the opportunity to its students to complete the practical as well as the workplace experience on site at Sediba Academy. Learner will complete a Portfolio of Evidence consisting of formative, summative assessments, and will write an External Assessment under ETDP Seta, Certificate is issued by QCTO.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

- A National Senior Certificate with communication.
- OR A National Certificate (Vocational) at NQF Level 4 with communication.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

- Career developer at a Company.
- Training and development careers focus on planning and presenting programs that help people improve their skills and knowledge. You can work in training and development in a variety of fields. Positions may vary from the planning and construction of course material to the presentation and teaching of workshops or classes. Depending on the job, you may work in-person with students or trainees or conduct online virtual units.

CONTACT US

053 712 0820 / dbotes@sediba.org

www.sediba.org